The Riversmiths Story

In 1976, Bob Corcorran opened a small restaurant called “River Smith’s” to supplement his construction career. River Smith’s specialized in home-cooked catfish and fried chicken, using Corcorran family recipes that have been around for generations. No one had ever tasted catfish or chicken like this. Bob worked in the kitchen by day and installed floors at night. That is, until enough people tasted River Smith’s amazing catfish and chicken. Lucky for us, Bob was better at cooking than flooring, and so began the culinary adventure known today as “River Smith’s Catfish and Chicken”.

The restaurant grew in popularity, so much that diners had to wait for a place to sit for lunch. Bob quickly had to expand to keep up with demand for River Smith’s unique and just plain ol’ good home cooked catfish, chicken, and other southern Cajun favorites.

Today, people from all over the South Plains of Texas enjoy River Smith’s amazing catfish and chicken. The boys, John and Paul, carry on the family tradition that Bob began through catering and running the restaurant.

River Smith’s is a proud holder of the coveted KCBT TV “Top Performer Award” was voted the “Best of Lubbock”.
